17. ABSTRACT (MAX. 250 WORDS)

The nouns--table, door, room, house, and bed--are introduced by presenting them with appropriate pictures. The relationship is made stronger by a demand for recognition in situations where nouns are compared and contrasted to pictures. "The" and "and" are introduced by visual and oral cues from a helper. Further discrimination is built up for these words by configuration training, the linking of the shape of the word to a geometric form. Tests are included for responses to these words in isolation, without verbal or picture cues.
